Lisa Oberg

a ZOOM presentation on

"PRESERVING FAMILY HEIRLOOMS"

Are you the family archivist? For many, once news of their interest in genealogy spreads to distant family members, they find themselves the caretaker for their family's heirlooms. You will be introduced to preservation tips for family treasures such as photographs, textiles and other artifacts. Suggested ways to store objects will be discussed, as well as how to deal with damage and other wear-and-tear.

Inspired by the Bicentennial, Lisa began researching her family history at the age of 12. She's especially enamored with her Luxembourg ancestors. Lisa received her library degree from the University of Washington, where she is the Associate Director of Special Collections. Lisa has taught numerous online courses aimed at library staff serving genealogists. Lisa received a certificate in 1996 from the UW's former Genealogy and Family History program.
